Visit to CARE

The Grade 5 students of FIS visited Charlie's Animal Rescue Centre (CARE) on 31 January and 1 February. The visit helped students empathise with the animals and the care that is needed to look after different animals. Interactions with the caretakers enhanced the students' awareness of animal welfare and made them understand the plight of abandoned animals.

FRED AND HIS BREAD

ONE DAY MY FRIEND, FRED SAID THAT HE ATE BREAD. I THOUGHT HE LOST HIS HEAD BECAUSE I HATE BREAD.

I SAID, WHAT DO YOU PREFER WITH YOUR BREAD? CHEESE SHRED THATS WHAT I PREFER WITH MY BREAD.

YUCK! FRED I THINK YOU LEFT YOUR R HEAD IN THE BREAD.

Where I Come From:

My map was inked by an October rain, followed by a rainbow that rewrote the colours of the path. I am from the landscape where the water rose to meet me and the sky smiled a welcome.

My path holds highways of hope, valleys of balance, leading to mountains of motivation and deltas of discovery. It weaves through forests of felicity and overgrown of obscurance toward the radiance of my 'journeys'.

My compass is calibrated by lessons of resilience, to follow a steady path of truth. The needle piercing through the thickest fog of negativity, pointing toward the silver lining of a strength I never knew I owned.

My destination is the horizon of continued growth, leaving only the echoes of the rebellious storm behind. Quietly crossing the path never taken, unfolding in the light that follows the October rain.

Autumn Birds

Warm and cosy autumn
Is at the foggy bottom. ✓

The tiny birds chirp
While drinking a slurp. ✓

The tiny birds send interesting presents
That look so pleasant. ✓

The big bright sun
likes to eat a big bun. ✓

Birds are the best
Because they make creative nests.

Paint Also Makes People Faint

It was a beautiful painting.
But my friend was slowly fainting.
When I stepped my enormous painting,
Then I looked at my friend, waiting to see if he was still fainting
And I couldn't believe to see that he had still fainted
because of the way I painted.
